Past Twelve Months Shows Remarkable Increase in Number Employed in Connecticut.

'Twenty-three candidates for barbers' certificates were examined at the capitol, Monday, by the state board of examiners. The statement was made by a member of the commission that there was a record increase in the number of barbers in the state during the past twelve months. He said there had been less than 3,000 barbers employed in the state at present. The greatest increase has been noticeable in Bridgeport, where the commission has been obliged to hold four examinations since January last, and has a large number waiting. He attributed the increase to the industrial prosperity which the state was enjoying. Men don't shave themselves so much when they are prosperous.
